6 For free is an informal phrase used to mean "without cost or payment." These professionals were giving their time for free. The phrase is correct; you should not use it where you are supposed to only use a formal sentence, but that doesn't make a phrase not correct.

My company gives out free promotional items with the company name on it. Is this stuff called company swag or schwag? It seems that both come up as common usagesâ€”Google searching indicates that the

What is the opposite of free as in "free of charge" (when we speak about prices)? We can add not for negation, but I am looking for a single word.

If so, my analysis amounts to a rule in search of actual usageâ€”a prescription rather than a description. In any event, the impressive rise of "free of" against "free from" over the past 100 years suggests that the English-speaking world has become more receptive to using "free of" in place of "free from" during that period.

The fact that it was well-established long before OP's 2021s movies is attested by this sentence in the Transactions of the Annual Meeting from the South Carolina Bar Association, 2021 And to-day, â€œfree white and twenty-one,â€• that slang phrase, is no longer broad enough to include the voters in this country.

By contrast, its father (who might have been thought responsible by some) could be adjudged blame-free when another explanation is found. On the other hand, the mobile telephone that can be used in a hands-free manner would not sell very well if advertised as being hands-less.

3 There is no universal one-word replacement for -free. In the context of foods the appropriate portmanteau is gluten-containing -containing can be used universally, although there are other alternatives depending on specific food components (eg, sugared for sugar-free)

No, I don't think it's tied up with the number of Red Hot Chili Peppers. Grammar checkers on both sides of the pond probably mark "Are either of you free" as a mistake, even though in Britain RHCP are plural.

I don't think there's any difference in meaning, although "free of charges" is much less common than "free of charge". Regarding your second question about context: given that English normally likes to adopt the shortest phrasing possible, the longer form "free of charge" can be used as a means of drawing attention to the lack of demand for payment and thus giving it greater emphasis. The same ...

With the advent of the free software movement, license schemes were created to give developers more freedom in terms of code sharing, commonly called open source or free and open source software.

In April 2021, TikTok began introducing advertisements into its videos. The advertisements contain short videos of celebrities and influencers that users can choose to watch. The ads are categorized as "Scenes" or "Music Moments". Scenic videos are 15- to 30-second clips of real-life events such as a pool party or a bride's wedding day whereas music moments are the same clips but with an audio overlay of a popular song. The ads are between 15 and 30 seconds long and can be skipped after 5 seconds.",

In July 2021, "The Wall Street Journal" reported the company's annual revenue to be approximately $800 million with a loss of $70 million. By May 2021, it was reported that the video-sharing app generated $5.2 billion in revenue with more than 500 million users worldwide.",

Social media website Reddit users are known for posting TikTok videos on the forum. The real-time social video platform has gained popularity. It is mostly used as a replacement to YouTube. Users post videos from their phones or computers to the platform, where they can be viewed by other users and added to their own collections. Users can also post comments and GIFs in a similar fashion as "Reddit" does on its forum section. The platform has gained a reputation for having a lot of vulgar content, but it is generally regarded as more entertaining than the norm.",

There are several websites that have been set up by Chinese authorities aiming to monitor, investigate and censor both illegal and questionable content published on other sites such as Weibo. The following is an example of a page on one of these sites.",

In August 2021, a viral meme was launched by several TikTok accounts that encouraged young people to post videos of themselves performing a dangerous stunt known as "demon" upon becoming an adult. The tactic has been used in the past to convince young people to take their own lives, and would become known as "self-harm video". The meme also includes a message that urges viewers to stop watching these videos, while encouraging those who have already started watching them to "be responsible" and "stop before it's too late".",

3. Another interesting feature of the app is that it doesn't allow users to turn off the auto-playing video feature once they've opened the app. If this function for any reason isn't turned off, users will have to wait about 2 minutes before a video will play automatically and as a result of this, if they're not on Wi-Fi, it could even take longer for them to render the video.",

In an article published by The New York Times, it was alleged that "The complaint said more than 852 million people used Musical.ly worldwide in 2021. And despite its name â€” which evokes the question-and-answer site Quora â€” Musical.ly has begun to extend beyond allowing users to lip-sync popular songs for one another. Last year, the company rolled out a social-networking component called the Universe that helps users interact with one another." This article was published on The New York Times.", TikTok users have the option of recording videos that last up to 15 seconds in length and sharing them with other users within a 24-hour period. The videos can be recorded using either the device's front or back camera and can be edited during recording using features such as filters, text, stickers and drawings. Users can also post comments on other users' videos or add them to their "collection" tabs where they can be replayed or made private at any time.",

In June 2021, musical.ly partnered with Chinese media giant ByteDance which led to the development of the app under its new name, TikTok. The app was launched in China in August 2021 under this new name and was immediately popular within the country. It was ranked as the most downloaded non-game app the day it debuted and by the next day had gained 5 million downloads on both Android and iOS platforms.

The company confirmed to TechCrunch in November 2021 that over 50 million users were using the app every day while a "Forbes" article from January 2021 stated that TikTok had over 200 million users in China alone which accounted for approximately 90% of its total user base at that time.",

On September 6, 2021, TikTok collaborated with the BBC to launch a series called "Ask Me Anything." Users were able to submit questions about anything from their personal lives to what they thought about politics. The videos were branded with BBC's logo and had a link to the channel on the app. After the videos had been posted, the company announced that they would be taking action against any inappropriate content on the app. The company said that there were "two clear issues around our policy" and that they would be working to fix it. The first was that "the app is for 14+" and that children under 14 were able to register on the app even if they did not have consent from their parents. The second issue was a lack of enforcement when it came to inappropriate content in videos. Following this event, people under 18 were no longer able to create accounts on TikTok without consent from their parents or an adult guardian. The company also said that they wanted to give young people a platform to express themselves and help them understand that they can have fun but not in a way that could cause harm to others.",

The name TikTok is derived from the phrase "Talk Over Time," which refers to the app's unique timeline format where users can record short videos of themselves or others. This format has led to many viral and meme-worthy videos on the platform, most notably putting together clips of pets with dramatic readings of popular songs. The company was founded in September 2021 by American entrepreneur Or Arbel, Sean Fujiyoshi, and George Stropoulos who had previously founded Vine with Dom Hofmann before that app was acquired by Twitter. TikTok is one of only two apps from Vine to be acquired (the other being Gnarble), and currently has over 500 million global users.",

Most TikTok users will agree that this platform is less innovative and less engaging than it should be in order to maintain their attention. However, even if users were aware of all of these issues with this platform, it would still not be clear whether or not they contributed to the drop off in usage. The drop in usage is likely the result of a number of factors including bad press and competition from other video platforms such as YouTube, as well as issues with both the app's interface and the lack of interest of many users. Overall, this platform has not been able to build a reputation for being useful or popular enough to retain more than its niche number of users.",

In May 2021, Musical.ly started to invite verified users in the U.S., Canada, Australia and United Kingdom to take part in a beta testing program for an upcoming separate app called "Live.ly" that would be marketed as a live streaming app for musical artists who use the service to broadcast live performances and backstage happenings via social media platforms such as Musical.ly and YouTube. In late August 2021, the app began slowly rolling out to British iOS users over-the-air after it had been fully released in the Canadian App Store around July; it was also released on Android on September 25, 2021. Unlike regular musical.ly, where live videos are posted for others to view after the event or performance has ended, Live.ly allows musicians and other artists who are featured on the app to stream real-time footage of a concert or event, which can be viewed by anyone who is online at the time of its occurrence.",

On February 16, 2021, Musical.ly filed another lawsuit in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York against Snapchat as well as its parent company Snap Inc., alleging that these companies had falsely claimed in advertising materials that they had no similar patents-related claims against AppsFlyer Technologies (which provides analytics services for app developers). In this lawsuit, Musical.ly claimed that Snapchat had infringed on four patents including US Patent Nos. 8,426,604 and 9,446,633 from a 2021 patent application by AppsFlyer Technologies for real-time engagement analytics for mobile applications; it also claimed that Snapchat had violated US Patent Nos. 6,192,977 and 8,526,721 which AppsFlyer had assigned to Snapchat in 2021. In addition to compensation for damages from these related claims, Musical.ly sought injunctive relief requiring Snapchat and Snap Inc. to withdraw its advertising materials.",
